

Minibus day trip to:

Purbeck Coast

On: Saturday 24th October

Meet at: 8am at Trinity gates, Broad Street

Returning: late evening

Organised by: Danica Fernandes (danica.fernandes@ccc.ox.ac.uk)

From the beautiful Purbeck hills to the stunning coastline, this region of Dorset has a wonderful variety of landscapes.

We will begin in Kimmeridge and will walk through the Purbeck hills towards Corfe Castle. This was built by William the Conqueror and dates back to the 11th century. This makes it one of the first stone castles in the UK.

Along the way, we will pass Swyre Head, the highest point of the Purbeck hills and one of the best views of the coastline.

We will then walk along the South West coastal path back to Kimmeridge Bay. This region has Jurassic shale cliffs and has many fossils from this period.

We will then finish with a pub dinner in the nearby market town of Wareham.

Equipment: Please bring a comfortable pair of walking boots, waterproof coat and trousers (can be borrowed from OUWC), a packed lunch and some water. Some extra layers and a torch are also advisable as well as some money for a pub dinner.

Hope you can join us :)
